

May 11, 2020

Dear Independent Living Provider,

The previous directive that expired on Sunday, April 5, 2020 has been extended to May 29, 2020. No changes outside of the extension to the expiration date have been made to the initial directive that indicated all contracted Independent Living/Transitional Independent Living Skills Trainers are approved to conduct virtual skill building sessions. All skill building sessions will be conducted virtually, unless the youth/young adult is unable to participate in, or benefit from, a virtual session, and the youth/young adult and other household members have no COVID-19 symptoms (fever, cough, shortness of breath). This directive is time limited and will be revisited on a weekly basis to determine if a continuation is required beyond May 29th.

Skill building sessions enhance the youth/young adults' transition to adulthood, so it is imperative that the sessions continue uninterrupted to the greatest extent possible. Contact with a skills trainer can also provide concrete support, social connectedness, and resilience to youth/young adults who may be experiencing increased need. With coordination and patience, virtual skill sessions can be arranged and effective.

Requirements:

- Virtual skill sessions shall occur via video whenever possible. If the youth/young adult has no access to video technology, telephone contact may occur.
- Skills Trainers shall communicate with the youth/young adult prior to the skill building session to confirm the necessary technology is in place. While the Department is not mandating the software a provider must use as a solution, all platforms must adhere to all confidentiality rules and regulations as per law.
- Skill sessions shall be conducted per the duration and frequency outlined in the contract scope of work and the individual service plan.
- Skill session documentation shall include the following statement: "This session was completed using virtual technology as a result of an in person waiver during a declared public health emergency to protect against COVID-19."
- In the event of in-person skill sessions, please reference the attached "Guidance for Conducting Home Visits" questionnaire, to assess the safety of the family and home environment related to COVID-19.
- Providers will bill the skill sessions per the standards for the referred service, as if the contact occurred in person.
- Documentation of the skill session must include the name of all participants, the location of all participants, the method of contact used (virtual application by name or telephone), and the start and end time of the communication.
